ENDURANCE FLIGHT RECORD HAS BEEN BROKEN BY CALIFORNIANS

FLIGHT CONTINUED AFTER OHIO RECORD SMASHED BY PLANE

Propose To Make Real Mark For Challengers

CULVER CITY, July 10.—The world's refueling endurance flight record rose and fell today with each revolution of the worn motor of the biplane "Angelino" as it roared onward toward the 200-hour mark with its tireless crew of "two hard boiled hombres."

"We are two hard-boiled hombres and if you think we are coming down, you are foolish," messaged Loren Mendell and R. M. "Pete" Reinhart as they piloted the "Angelino" into its 176th hour in the air, bettering by the required one hour the week-old record of Byron Newcomb and Mitchell of Cleveland.

The new record-holders' challenge "stick around and we'll give you a real mark to shoot at," apparently was being fulfilled as Mendell and Reinhart neared the beginning of their ninth day in the air. If all goes well with the "Angelino" and its crew, the flight will pass the 200th hour at 3:30:29 p. m. (Pacific Coast Time) this afternoon.

The 10,000 spectators who watched the veteran Texas barnstormer and his novice companion break the old record of 174 hours yesterday were augmented today by many more who came to see if the fliers would succeed in their attempt to remain aloft 400 hours.

CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—Byron K. Newcomb and Roy L. Mitchell, Cleveland pilots who set a record for endurance flying only to have it bettered within a week by California fliers, said today they would attempt to regain the honor.

"We are waiting to see what they do," said Mitchell when informed that L. W. Mendell and R. M. Reinhart were still in the air after beating the mark made by the plane City of Cleveland. "Then we will prepare to attempt to surpass anything they accomplish."

AIRPLANE CRASHES AT JAMESTOWN; TWO ARE SLIGHTLY HURT

Springfield Ship Falls In Attempt To Take-Off

Elijah "Buddy" Bragg, 19, pilot, and Lloyd McColough, 27, a passenger, both of Springfield, O., were shaken and bruised but escaped serious injury when their biplane crashed when they were in the act of taking off from an oat field on the farm of Burgess Leach, living on the Middle Jeffersonville Road, two miles east of Jamestown, at 4 p. m. Tuesday.

With the plane behind it, the plane left the ground and rose several feet but the pilot lost control when the stiff wind twisted it around with the result it came down and smashed into a fence.

The plane was overturned and was badly damaged. The damage consisted of a broken gasoline tank, broken propeller and broken wheels. Gasoline splattered over the ship but it did not catch fire.

The Springfield residents had flown to Jamestown from Springfield an hour earlier and made a successful landing on the Leach farm.

McColough's brother, Earl, lives on W. Washington St., in Jamestown, and after a visit with relatives, the pair attempted to take off on a return flight to Springfield when the accident occurred.

Relatives in Jamestown said that Bragg and McColough had bought the plane several months ago. McColough did not know how to fly but Bragg, who is also well known in Jamestown, had taken a course in flying at Springfield, although it was said he had not flown the requisite length of time alone to gain recognition as a full-fledged pilot.

INFANT KILLED

MIDDLETOWN, O., July 10.—Violet Bradenburg, aged 17 months, was killed at her home at Carlisle when her father's car struck her.

GIANTESS CONFESSES TORCH MURDER

Laura Weaver, 21-year-old Wyoming, Ill., girl who has confessed the murder of Wilmer T. Kitzelman (also of Wyoming), her 52-year-old common law husband. In her confession she told of garroting Kitzelman with his own belt at Wyoming, then conveyed the body thirty miles in her automobile to a roadside near Annewan, Ill., where she drenched it with naphtha and fired it. Shown with her is State's Attorney L. M. Burkey of Toulon, Ill. (left), and Sheriff W. O. Edwards.

SEES MAN'S FALL BY TSETSE FLY
INDIANAPOLIS, July 10.—The long-heralded extermination of mankind by insects has found a new champion in Dr. Roderic H. Rae, director of visual education in Indianapolis public schools, but Dr. Rae goes a step further than his predecessors in the prophetic line by naming the insect that will be mankind's Waterloo.

"The African tsetse fly, which produces sleeping sickness threatens mankind with devastation," Dr. Rae said. "We know of no cure for its sting, which brings sleeping sickness from which victims do not recover."

To show that the tsetse fly's deadly peril is imminent Dr. Rae sent to a recent death at Crawfordsville, Ind., from its sting.

LONDON AND PARIS POLICE ENTER PACT TO THWART CROOKS

Sign Agreement To Co-operate To Curb Crime

LONDON, July 10.—The police departments of London and Paris have concluded an agreement to work together in curbing the activities of international bandits.

The agreement was reached during a conference between Lord Byng, commissioner of police of London, and M. Chiappe, the Paris prefect of police. It provides for close cooperation between the police and emigration department of France and England and the establishment in France of an office for checking the movements of international criminals.

"This agreement is one of the most important steps yet taken to stem the activities of thieves and armed bandits," said M. Chiappe. "Scotland Yard has noticed that whenever a particular daring raid has been carried out in this country the bandits were generally foreigners in France."

"We must do everything in our power to check the activities of these dangerous aliens."

RADIO AGAINST SMUGGLERS

BELGRADE, July 10.—More effectively to cope with smugglers on the Adriatic coast radio will be installed on all coast guard cutters and patrol boats within the near future.

CHANNEL TUBE MADE BASIS FOR SWINDLE WORKED IN EUROPE

Duped Workmen In Paris Reveal Gang Activities

PARIS, July 10.—The gangs of international criminals who roam and comb the countries of Europe year in and year out are nothing if not ingenious.

Moreover, they believe in keeping abreast of the times, as shown by the very latest wholesale swindle which is occupying the attention of the French Scotland Yard and the police of several other countries. They are seeking a gang who has made a small fortune out of something which does not exist—the Channel Tunnel.

Suspicious were aroused after a number of recent round-ups of foreigners in the streets of Paris. Among the arrested in various parts of the city were forty laborers from Central Europe all possessing forged identity cards which seemed to be the work of one person. Interrogated at police headquarters, the men all replied: "We came to work on the Channel Tunnel."

But there was no work on the Channel Tunnel, said the police.

"Yes," responded the unhappy immigrants, "but we didn't know that when we paid our money."

Then the plot was unfolded. A band of well dressed crooks set out on a mission to various continental countries to recruit dupes and dollars. Working the agricultural and industrial districts, they found their plausible yarn readily accepted. They graphically told of the great work which had begun in France on the biggest engineering job of the age—the construction of the Channel Tunnel. Labor was short. There were millions ofaires to be made. Why not emigrate? As agents for the contractors, they could give labor contracts.

Elaborate Organization
According to information gathered by the French police, the swindlers' organization was extremely elaborate. In the first place, a stiff sum was charged for the provision of a false passport. After the laborer, dreaming of the golden future had sold up his home and embarked on the train journey to France, a second accomplice got in tow with him and took more money from the victim by pointing out errors in the passport and "rectifying" them.

Those who succeeded in passing the frontier with their faked identity cards found themselves confronted with still another of the gang at the Gare St. Lazare, the Paris rail terminal. He gave service by conducting the immigrants to a colony where they would be beside compatriots and incidentally he took his cut out of the victim's dwindling hoard.

The work of the swindlers is believed to have embraced at least six countries, from all of which come reports of complaint being made to the police by poor workmen whom the gang has robbed.

The investigations in France are now in the hands of M. Balmader, Commissioner of the Mobile Brigade, assisted by Inspectors Marc and Beuf, who are hopeful of laying hands soon on the swindlers.

REPORT WILLYS TO SELL BUSINESS TO BECOME DIPLOMAT

Auto Manufacturer May Be Ambassador To France

WASHINGTON, July 10.—John N. Willys of Toledo is being considered by President Hoover for a post in diplomatic corps and it is strongly indicated that he will be tendered such a position.

It is said, however, that it would not be the French ambassadorship.

TWO KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—Two men were killed and a third was critically injured early today when their automobile skidded on the slippery pavement, upset, and crashed into a tree.

The dead were Walter J. Reed, 24, of Beachwood village, was seriously injured and physicians said his recovery was doubtful.

There were no witnesses to the accident but police said marks on the pavement gave mute evidence of how the car was wrecked.

WANTS COOL MALE ATTIRE

Public Health Official Says Women More Comfortable Than Men.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—"The more it receives a proper exposure to the air and sunshine, the more it is conducive to health development. Women are far ahead of men in the matter of sensible dress. They are rapidly approaching the ideal."

Dr. Cummings wiped his brow, declaring "it would be highly beneficial to the health and general well-being of men if a fashion could be set which would enable them to rid themselves of unnecessary, uncomfortable and foolish articles of clothing just as the modern woman has done."

"More shirt-sleeves and fewer starched collars," is the latest slogan of the men's clothing reform movement. If women are to be allowed freedom of the knees, they argue, why should not men be allowed freedom at least of the elbows and Adam's apple.

REPORT THIRTY KILLED WHEN LANDSLIDE FALLS ON VILLAGE

LONDON, July 10.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokyo reported today that thirty persons were killed by a landslide which pushed a whole Kagoshima fishing village into the sea. The landslide was caused by excessive rains during recent week.

YELLOW SPRINGS FAVORS PLAN TO MERGE SCHOOL DISTRICTS

The Yellow Springs school district passed out of existence Wednesday when voters of the district, by an overwhelming majority of 232 to 42, voted at a special election Tuesday to dissolve the school district and join the contiguous Miami Twp. school district. That interest in the election was keen was made manifest in the unusually large vote cast.

The dissolution of the district becomes effective immediately and means that the village school board is automatically abolished.

This board of five members had been composed of Faye Kershner, president; Towne Carlisle, clerk; Mrs. D. A. Brewer, Ralph Figgins and Paul Weiss.

Result of the election means that control of the schools will be centralized and that the township board now has entire control of all village and township schools, including the new Bryan High School, which has been more or less a bone of contention.

Overhead cost of operating the schools will also be reduced and the possibility of deadlocks or split factions in the selection of teachers for the new high school will be avoided, it is pointed out.

Control of the new high school, built last year at the expense of the township and village, had been vested in a joint committee composed of two members of the village board and two members of the township board.

Alleged inability of the joint committee to function harmoniously, rendering it difficult to obtain new teachers both for new positions and for occupation of the resigned positions on the high school faculty next year, is believed to have partly influenced the decision to hold the special election on the proposition to dissolve the village school district.

The township board, as a result of the election, will shoulder all the taxes and pay for maintenance of all schools.

The township board is expected to arrive at a decision soon on the employment of a superintendent for the high school to succeed Ninde Wilder, superintendent of the village schools for the last two years, who is not expected to teach next year.

YOUTHS HELD FOR STEALING BRASS

Police are holding Chester Freeland, 18, and John Moore, 17, E. Second St., for further questioning following their alleged confession that they stole about five pounds of brass from the auxiliary waterworks station on Cincinnati Ave., and disposed of it to Freeland's father, Ollie, for 86 cents. The father was not aware it was stolen property.

The youths were arrested Tuesday and turned over to police by G. A. Busmeyer and Fred O. Llewellyn, Pennsylvania railroad detectives.

The Moore boy stays at the Freeland home, police say.

WOMAN FINED

Pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication and disorderly conduct, Mrs. Etta Parks, colored, was fined $5 and costs by Mayor Karl R. Babb Wednesday morning. She was arrested Tuesday by Patrolman George Robinson.

OPENING DATE FOR DOG RACES IS UNDECIDED

Because of inclement weather, which has delayed construction work, the Fairfield Amusement Park, Ltd., is expected to postpone the formal opening of its new dog track being rushed to completion at Fairfield, until some time next week.

The promoters of the enterprise had scheduled the opening for Thursday night this week and later the opening date was tentatively fixed for Saturday night.

While the Saturday night date is still under consideration, directors of the organization are convinced that the finishing touches on the racing plant cannot be put on in time to open before next week.

TRAIN KILLS MAN
FREEPORT, O., July 10.—Andrew W. Steele, 77, was killed here when he was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio train.

AMERICANS LAND AS GAS IS EXHAUSTED; TRIP IS CONTINUED

Yancey And Williams Re-fuel Ship And Leave For Rome

SANTANDER, Spain, July 10.—The American trans-Atlantic fliers, Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, flew with their monoplane Pathfinder, from here for Rome at 11:18 a. m. today.

They had been forced down near here late yesterday with their fuel running short and thus cheated of what they had hoped would be a non-stop flight from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome, Italy.

In halting here, the pair had practically duplicated the experiences of their friendly rivals of the French plane Yellow Bird who came down in the same vicinity recently on what they had planned as a non-stop Old Orchard-Paris trip.

Williams and Yancey found their plane in its condition, and decided after refueling today to push on for their Rome goal.

The aviators, after a night's rest here, were fit for the final leg of the journey.

They arose at 8:30 a. m. today and went by auto to Albericia Field, five miles away, where to the natives' surprise they landed yesterday. The motors were put into shape, 150 gallons of gasoline were loaded into the tanks, and at 11 a. m. everything was in readiness and a few minutes later the airplane departed.

The aviators said they would fly across Spain toward Marseilles and from there to Rome. While Williams was preparing the ship, Yancey was busy checking the time with his six watches. During their preparations, the fliers were besieged by thousands of autograph-seekers. When they left, the field was crowded with people from the surrounding country who came over to bid them a cordial farewell.

Yancey and Williams were forced down near this coast town of northern Spain at 9:30 o'clock last night (8:30 E. S. T.), after they had covered a distance of 3,410 miles. They still had a little fuel left, but decided to land here rather than risk a forced landing in the gathering darkness of the Pyrenees Mountains.

The fliers showed considerable disappointment because of their inability to proceed to Rome. But the fact that they had accomplished the Atlantic crossing made up for their failure to reach their destination. Terrific headwinds a great distance of the way were held responsible for the unexpected large consumption of gasoline.

Anyhow, we are proud to have crossed the Atlantic," Yancey said in a United Press interview. "Had we not been forced to leave some of our gasoline home to facilitate our take-off we would have reached Rome."

The fliers, who had left Old Orchard Monday morning, had been in the air little more than thirty-one hours. Yancey was in excellent physical condition when the plane landed. Williams was slightly ill, suffering from stomach troubles. The latter almost fainted when he stepped out of the ship and had to be supported by one of the natives to keep from falling. He received immediate medical attention.

"When we started from Old Orchard," Yancey continued, "Williams was piloting and continued to do so for the next five hours. Then he became ill and gave the wheel to me. Afterward we alternated. Before we arrived here, however, Williams grew faint."

"I, too, had great difficulty keeping my legs, due to the cramped position I had been in for thirty hours, without sleeping. But after a few minutes I was all right."

"Williams told me when we flew over Comillas Beach that it must be the same place where Assolant and the other members of the Yellow Bird landed. For an instant we thought of doing the same thing. But since we had some fuel left we decided to go on."

"We are very grateful for the kindness which has been shown to guide us and to show us the way. Had it not been for the illumination of the field we probably would have made a bad landing."

The fliers said the highest altitude they reached was 12,000 feet, but over the Spanish coast they flew as low as fifty feet.

"We held to our scheduled route faithfully," Yancey said. "But when we got to the coast we didn't know exactly where we were, although we guessed correctly."

"We went through three stormy regions. Once we were through a fog five hours. And near the Azores the wind was so strong that it blew the plate covering off our gasoline tank."

HOPE IS ABANDONED FOR CREW TRAPPED IN UNDERSEA BOAT

Efforts To Salvage Sunken Submarine Are Rushed

LONDON, July 10.—The British admiralty threw all its resources today into the effort to salvage the submarine H-47, resting beneath fifty fathoms of water in St. George's Channel. But admiralty officials admitted they had little hope that any of the twenty-one men believed in the boat were still alive.

Naval vessels were rushed to the spot on the New York-Liverpool ship lane where the H-47 sank after a collision with the L-12 while returning from maneuvers in the Irish Sea, and seaplanes were instructed to scan the waters for possible survivors.

The destroyer Thanet also was called back from a voyage from Plymouth to Arran and ordered to proceed to the scene of the disaster, and numerous tug boats with salvage equipment sailed from ports along the coast to aid in the rescue.

The disaster, one of the greatest in British submarine history, cast a gloom over naval circles, and all merrymaking which had been scheduled to celebrate the return from maneuvers was postponed.

The exact number aboard the H-47 when it sank was not known, but A. V. Alexander, first lord of the admiralty, said he believed twenty-two were lost. The usual complement of the vessel was twenty-three, however, and two of them were thrown into the water when the boats collided, and were rescued. They were Lieut. R. J. Gardner, commander of the H-47, and Telegraphist Sydney Cleburne.

Signalman Charles Bull was in the conning tower of the L-12 at the time of the accident and was missing today. It was believed he was thrown into the water and drowned. Arthur Sampson, an able seaman on the L-12, died from injuries he received in the collision.

Both boats were traveling on the surface when they crashed about twelve miles west of St. David's Head. The H-47 sank almost immediately in fifty fathoms of water, but the L-12 was able to proceed on her own power and arrived at Milford Haven last night.

YOUTH DROWNS AS CANOE CAPSIZED

DAYTON, July 10.—William Faber, 18, was drowned when the canoe in which he was racing from Dayton to Louisville, Ky., capsized in going over a dam at West Carrollton yesterday.

Gerald Van Pelt, 17, who was with Faber, swam to shore after the canoe capsized. His search for his companion proved unavailing. Mallon Lowe and Joseph Cardosi, who are in another canoe in the race, are believed to have continued on the trip, although they were not seen after passing Miamisburg.

TRAINMAN KILLED

Public Health Official Says Women More Comfortable Than Men.

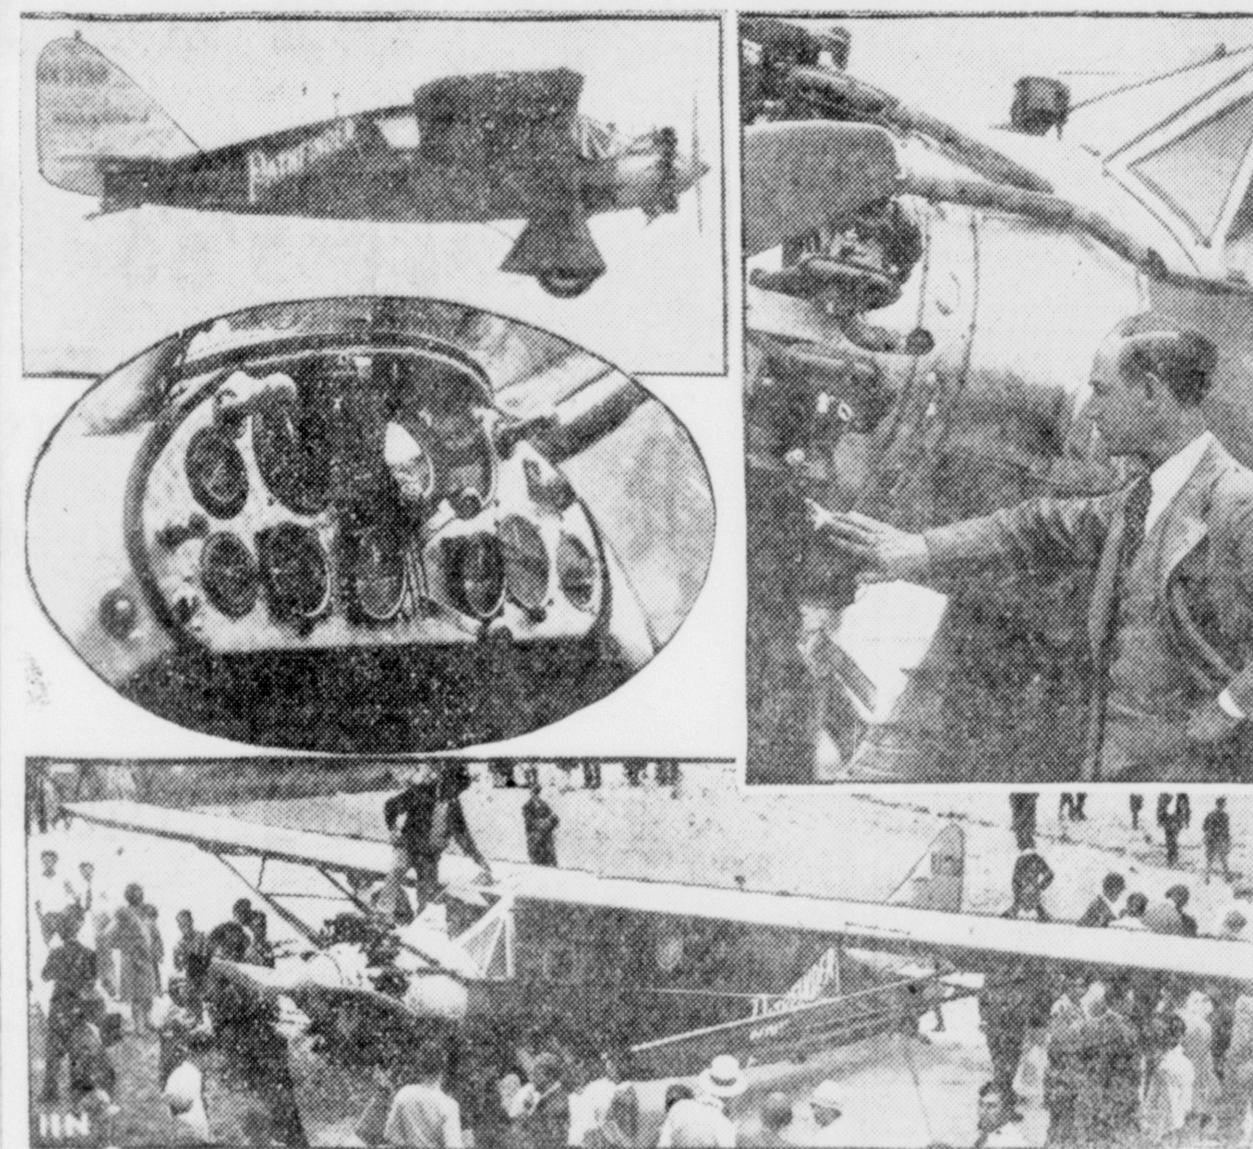

WASHINGTON, July 10.—Washington's well-known heat apparently has risen to a point below the neckband of government health experts. Public Health Service officials, from Surgeon General Cummings and Dr. W. F. Draper, assistant, down to the office boy, are campaigning for more and cooler comfort.

Perhaps jealousy of the trailer sex who, they claim, have solved the clothes problem insofar as torrid weather is concerned, has motivated this sudden outburst of reform.

"Men should follow the example set them by women," declared the perspiring Dr. Draper. "The present clothing—particularly in the summertime, is unsuitable, uncomfortable and unnecessary."

"The more freedom the body is given," he heatedly continued, "the more it receives a proper exposure to the air and sunshine, the more it is conducive to health development. Women are far ahead of men in the matter of sensible dress. They are rapidly approaching the ideal."

The usual complement of the vessel was twenty-three, however, and two of them were thrown into the water when the boats collided, and were rescued. They were Lieut. R. J. Gardner, commander of the H-47, and Telegraphist Sydney Cleburne.

Signalman Charles Bull was in the conning tower of the L-12 at the time of the accident and was missing today. It was believed he was thrown into the water and drowned. Arthur Sampson, an able seaman on the L-12, died from injuries he received in the collision.

Both boats were traveling on the surface when they crashed about twelve miles west of St. David's Head. The H-47 sank almost immediately in fifty fathoms of water, but the L-12 was able to proceed on her own power and arrived at Milford Haven last night.

YOUTH DROWNS AS CANOE CAPSIZED

DAYTON, July 10.—William Faber, 18, was drowned when the canoe in which he was racing from Dayton to Louisville, Ky., capsized in going over a dam at West Carrollton yesterday.

Gerald Van Polk, 17, who was with Faber, swam to shore after the canoe capsized. His search for his companion proved unavailing. Mallon Lowe and Joseph Cardosi, who are in another canoe in the race, are believed to have continued on the trip, although they were not seen after passing Miamisburg.

AMERICANS LAND AS GAS IS EXHAUSTED; TRIP IS CONTINUED

Yancey And Williams Re-fuel Ship And Leave For Rome

SANTANDER, Spain, July 10.—The American trans-Atlantic fliers, Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, flew with their monoplane Pathfinder, from here for Rome at 11:18 a. m. today.

They had been forced down near here late yesterday with their fuel running short and thus cheated of what they had hoped would be a non-stop flight from Old Orchard, Me., to Rome, Italy.

In halting here, the pair had practically duplicated the experiences of their friendly rivals of the French plane Yellow Bird who came down in the same vicinity recently on what they had planned as a non-stop Old Orchard-Paris trip.

Williams and Yancey found their plane in fit condition, and decided after refueling today to push on for their Rome goal.

The aviators, after a night's rest here, were fit for the final leg of the journey.

They arose at 8:30 a. m. today and went by auto to Albericia Field, five miles away, where to the native's surprise they landed yesterday. The motors were put into shape, 150 gallons of gasoline were loaded into the tanks, and at 11 a. m. everything was in readiness and a few minutes later the airplane departed.

The aviators said they would fly across Spain toward Marseilles and from there to Rome. While Williams was preparing the ship, Yancey was busy checking the time with his six watches. During their preparations, the fliers were besieged by thousands of autograph-seekers. When they left, the field was crowded with people from the surrounding country who came over to bid them a cordial farewell.

Yancey and Williams were forced down near this coast town of northern Spain at 9:30 o'clock last night (8:30 E. S. T.), after they had covered a distance of 3,416 miles. They still had a little fuel left, but decided to land rather than risk a forced landing in the gathering darkness of the Pyrenees Mountains.

The fliers showed considerable disappointment because of their inability to proceed to Rome. But the fact that they had accomplished the Atlantic crossing made up for their failure to reach their destination. Terrific had been a great distance of the way were held responsible for the unexpectedly large consumption of gasoline.

"Anyhow, we are proud to have crossed the Atlantic," Yancey said in a United Press interview. "Had we not been forced to leave some of our gasoline home to facilitate our take-off, we would have reached Rome."

The fliers, who had left Old Orchard Monday morning, had been in the air little more than thirty-one hours. Yancey was in excellent physical condition when the plane landed. Williams was slightly ill, suffering from stomach troubles. The latter almost fainted when he stepped out of the ship and had to be supported by one of the natives to keep from falling. He received immediate medical attention.

"When we started from Old Orchard," Yancey continued, "Williams was plotting and continued to do so for the next five hours. Then he became ill and gave the wheel to me. Afterward we alternated. Before we arrived here, however, Williams grew faint."

"I, too, had great difficulty keeping my legs, due to the cramped position I had been in for thirty hours without moving. But after a few minutes I was all right."

"Williams told me when we flew over Comillas Beach that it must be the same place where Assolant and the other members of the Yellow Bird landed. For an instant we thought of doing the same thing. But since we had some fuel left we decided to go on."

"We are very grateful for the bonfires which had been lighted to guide us and to show us the way. Had it not been for the illumination of the field we probably would have made a bad landing."

The fliers said the highest altitude they reached was 12,000 feet, but over the Spanish coast they flew as low as fifty feet.

"We held to our scheduled route faithfully," Yancey said. "But when we got to the coast we didn't know exactly where we were, although we guessed correctly."

"We went through three stormy regions. Once we were through a fog five hours. And near the Azores the wind was so strong that it blew the plate covering off our gasoline tank."

TRAINMAN KILLED
CLEVELAND, O., July 10.—Reginald R. Randall, 32, New York Central brakeman, was killed when he fell beneath a freight train.

STORY REVEALS HOPKINS HEIRS LOSE BATTLE FOR HUGE ESTATE

Terminating a vast legal battle, the estate of the late Mark Hopkins, railroad genius, valued at from $90,000,000 to $300,000,000, has been won by his foster son, Timothy, 72, and his allied family to the disappointment of hundreds of other claimants in all parts of the United States, a Sunday newspaper feature story reveals.

In all there were about 600 claimants to the old prospector's millions, including James Hopkins, a Waynesville grocer, who had hoped to establish his claim to a part of the fortune left by Mark Hopkins, a bearded "forty-niner" who responded to the lure of California's gold rush and amassed a colossal estate.

The victor in the bitter coast to coast battle of eager claimants is the adopted son of the man who left it "hidden."

The climax of the contest for the Hopkins millions came after a three-year legal fight in California courts when Timothy Nolan Hopkins and his family were adjudged the rightful owners of the huge "stake." The claimants who lost ranged from cultivated citizens to utter illiterates and were stretched over a hundred cities and towns in the United States, in thirty different states, with the leading groups in North and South Carolina and Southern California.

Success as a prospector tells the story in a nutshell of how Mark Hopkins acquired his huge estate. Born in New York State in 1813, he got the gold rush fever and went to California. A subsequent ten-strike in real estate was the forerunner to his association with the building of the Central Pacific Railroad. This formed the nucleus for the expansion of his power and wealth.

In 1926, a supposed will of Hopkins, who died intestate, was offered for probate by a California man. It was declared a forgery. But meanwhile, as search was being pressed for Hopkins' signature, a packet of securities worth many millions was discovered at the Sacramento, Calif., National Bank. Another similar packet was unearthed at the Wells Fargo Bank and Union Trust Co. of San Francisco. The value of the estate was variously estimated at between $90,000,000 and $300,000,000. Upon publication of the immense value of these securities, the eager hands of hundreds of self-styled heirs were stretched out. Descendants of the unrecognized brothers and sisters of Hopkins united to establish their interest in the estate.

People trekked westward to protect their right to a cut in the fortune and letters and telegrams kept up a constant bombardment.

Timothy Hopkins, the adopted son, chief of the victorious defendants, lives with his wife in an elaborate estate at Menlo Park, near President Hoover's home on San Juan Hill. He is himself a capitalist of note and a close friend of the president, giving a picturesque touch to the struggle for the millions.

One of the disappointed claimants, James Hopkins, Waynesville, last fall heard that attorneys in California were looking for the heirs of the bearded "forty-niner" who was known as Mark Hopkins, and in some manner the grocer traced his descent, it is said, to the old prospector.

It was the original opinion of the grocer that a suit would be heard in California in September seeking to prove the claims of the heirs.

SMALLER CURRENCY WILL BE AVAILABLE AT BANKS HERE SOON

Xenia's three banks each expect to have small supplies of the new issue of small paper money within the next few days, following notification from federal reserve banks that the distribution of the new size currency was scheduled to start Wednesday.

The United States currency, which has been issued in its present size for more than sixty-five years, is to be replaced gradually by the new issue of improved design.

The treasury has authorized the twelve federal reserve banks to make available Wednesday to commercial banking institutions of their respective districts only limited amounts of the new currency, however.

The first issue of the new notes will include all kinds, except national bank notes, and all denominations from $1 to $20. The small size national bank notes will be printed and issued in order of charter numbers, beginning about July 15.

At the present time $5,000,000, 000 worth of paper currency is outstanding.

The new small paper money requires one-third less paper and ink, it is said. Local banking institutions have had samples of the new currency on display for some time.

SMALLER CURRENCY WILL BE AVAILABLE AT BANKS HERE SOON

Xenia's three banks each expect to have small supplies of the new issue of small paper money within the next few days, following notification from federal reserve banks that the distribution of the new size currency was scheduled to start Wednesday.

The United States currency, which has been issued in its present size for more than sixty-five years, is to be replaced gradually by the new issue of improved design.

The treasury has authorized the twelve federal reserve banks to make available Wednesday to commercial banking institutions of their respective districts only limited amounts of the new currency, however.

The first issue of the new notes will include all kinds, except national bank notes, and all denominations from $1 to $20. The small-size national bank notes will be printed and issued in order of character numbers, beginning about July 15.

At the present time $5,000,000,000 worth of paper currency is outstanding.

The new small paper money requires one-third less paper and ink, it is said.

Local banking institutions have had samples of the new currency on display for some time.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

FULFILLMENT—Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill. For verily, I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.—Matthew 5:17, 18.

TRAVEL AND THE BEAUTIES OF NATURE

See America first may be inviting for a geographic survey of our country but the manner in which it is done certainly does not suggest that the many beauties of nature are fully appreciated. An editorial in the June issue of "Successful Farming" says, in effect, that if a person has not learned to see beauty in home surroundings beauty will not be discerned in distant fields.

"If you have not learned to see the beauties of the sunsets, the wonders of the starry heavens above you, the vistas of nature spread over the landscape in your own home place, you are not prepared to appreciate nature anywhere. You will be disappointed at the end of your journey afar in search of beauty."

"There is marvelous beauty in the insects that surround you, and in the birds that sing to you from your own tree tops. But if you are not moved by any of these you will wonder why some people rave about the Rocky or the Blue Ridge or Ozark Mountains, or Mirror Lake, Shoshone Falls, or the magnolia blooms of the Southland. Some people sleep, or play cards as the train passes through America's most scenic places. And there are those who are so set on making a boasted mileage for the day that they will not stop their car even once to feast their souls upon the landscape."

UNTANGLING FOREIGN ENTANGLEMENTS

President Hoover is entitled to sit back and contemplate the present state of American foreign relations with considerable satisfaction.

On the whole, the international situation seems to be a more pleasant sight than at any time since war clouds first began to appear over Europe.

One refers to the result of the British elections and the forthcoming conference between Hoover and Premier Ramsay MacDonald and the latest settlement of the reparations problem with its bearing on our foreign debts. Both these situations have shaped up in a manner unquestionably pleasing to Hoover.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK. — A married man should guard his glances; but it's all right occasionally to let the ears wander, as it were.

Take the case of Eddie Dowling, husband of Ray Dooley. Not so many months ago Eddie was a prominent member of New York's Army of Talented But Impecunious. He is still talented, but because he did a little time, and because he was a little bit of a trouble maker, he is now a member of the "Honeycomb Lane" club.

When he was hammering together "Honeycomb Lane" he hired a very attractive chorine who took an immediate fancy to the cut of Edouard's jib. The night of the premiere she suggested that he sit in with her and several male acquaintances at an after-theatre "conference."

Eddie, who is nothing if not obliging, appeared at the party and was introduced by the chorus lady to three prominent Democratic leaders. They are so darned prominent that if their names were introduced here it might cast doubt on a perfectly authentic story.

The chorine spent the evening demonstrating to Eddie's satisfaction that she was on terms of perfect intimacy with the Three Wise Men of Gotham. So that next day, when she suggested that he and she pool their resources and take advantage of a market tip one of them had given her, and the other two had O-kayed, Ed. kicked in with his entire wad, a little less than $4,000.

Their flier netted them a handsome profit. The operation was repeated, not once but many times, so that their joint Grouch Bag today has a bulge like the bunion side of the pastor's shoe.

Now that Brother Dowling has a Bradstreet rating of worth Mazda Lane is waiting to see what he'll do, remembering Touchstone's observation: "Call me not fool till heaven hath sent me fortune."

POOR SOULS! Some day, somebody with the requisite imagination is going to do a great play or story around "The Understudy."

They're a pathetic crew. The Understudies, hovering in the shadows, this side of attainment, doomed for the most part to a lifetime of eclipse.

This, by way of preface to a little anecdote about Katherine Kennedy O'Connor, best known of Broadway understudies for stars of first magnitude.

Miss O'Connor stood on the sidelines for the temperamental "Jimmie" Eagels in "Rain." She stepped on the stage in Jeanne's place 30 times in one season.

When "Interference" was produced Miss O'Connor moved heaven and earth to get the part of "Deborah Kane," the blackmailer. There never was anything on earth she wanted more than that part, which is probably why she didn't get it. When you want a thing to the point where it begins to hurt, usually the hurt lasts.

Miss O'Connor was taken sick and went down to New Mexico, where she opened a dramatic school in Albuquerque. The fame of the establishment spread to Denver, where a high-class stock company was putting on "Interference," and the manager of the company conceived the idea that nobody connected with the stage would do for the part of "Deborah Kane" but Miss O'Connor. He wired, asking if she'd consider the part; and the manager probably never will understand the fervor of her acceptance. For a moment he thought he'd made a mistake.

The incident is a perfect example of Fate's favorite trick: Scratching plum pudding off the menu and substituting doughnuts.

A SAD TALE, MATES

Fifty thousand glasses clinked a sad goodbye the other day when the old-time bar equipment stored regally at the Hotel McAlpin against the day when—but what's the use. It won't come back, so let's forget it and start this story over again, right?

Fifty thousand cocktail, wine and Tom Collins glasses; 110 cocktail shakers; 25 silver containers for holding alluring little blue-white lumps of tinkling ice—member Gene Field's poem on "The clink of the ice in the pitcher?" Tough story to write, this. Better take another crack at it.

Frank A. Duggan, president and general manager of the Hotel McAlpin, the other day sold the hotel's entire bar equipment, which is going to be put to immediate use.

No, sir, not the way you think Stanley Howe, Bermuda hotel man, purchased the crystal and silver that at one time or another has been dilled with by most of Mazda Lane's celebrities, and which will now be employed in the work of soothing the fevered tongues of Signor Cook's justly celebrated tourists to the Isle of Delight.

THE WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

SNOB

Much talk in the last few weeks about snobs. Who is a snob? What is a snob? Be a snob, says a public speaker; keep after the rich, marry the daughter of the boss.

Snobs are folks who tuck in the rich, who imitate those in higher positions. Snobs want to appear something they are not. Snobs are substitutes, imitations, paste diamonds. Why worship the rich because they are rich? Did you ever find a rich man happier than a man in moderate circumstances? The only rich men who get much happiness out of their wealth are those who give it away, who are generous in impulse and deed. Why worship the rich, imitate the rich, truckle to the rich? Why imitate anybody? Why not be yourself, making no play for the favor of others?

CLOTHES

Some successful men, even some famous men, scour for good clothes. Young men shouldn't be much influenced by that. Spending money for good clothes is a wise investment. You can be sure the man from whom you seek a job is going to make a careful examination of you. He is going to be moved much by first impressions. If you look good, you've got a running start. The next step is to live up to your good clothes.

BIBLE RACES

One reads that in a small Ohio town a lot of people, working in re-els, have been reading the Bible from cover to cover. The idea is to read the whole Bible in one day or a certain number of hours. The readers will probably be little influenced by what they read. Much which they read they will not even understand. How much better to give that time to doing a few definite, useful things! How much better to occupy those hours putting into practice a few of the better known truths of the Bible!

THE BRAIN RESERVE

Most of the time our duties are not arduous enough to call for the exercise of more than a few of the billion brain cells with which we are equipped. We work a little and say we are tired. That's just a bad habit—this custom of feeling tired. Man only scratches the surface of his real capacity. There are reservoirs of resources in the brain which we rarely tap, which we never tap. Being satisfied with superficial results, we use our brains only superficially. Now and then it is a good thing to give the brain a real workout, to do some hard, concentrated work, to exercise the mind.

TRUE AND FALSE

There is a true and a false theory of business. The false—but very common theory of business—is that a store or a manufacturing company must do more business this year than it did last. It must have a greater volume of production and a greater volume of sales. Production and distribution are the first considerations—quality the second. The true theory of business is that human beings must be served better. Perhaps they do not need more goods. Perhaps they need fewer, but they always need better goods and better service.

Making more money than last year may be a high aim but a low ideal.

The World And All

A few thoughts about the Spaniards, as I see them on this Spanish ship, bound from New York to Spanish ports. They are very clean. Americans have no monopoly of the idea of many baths, clean hands, clean nails, neat dress and carefully scrubbed floors. These people are as clean as any I have known.

Conduct aboard is most respectable and orderly. I have seen no one even slightly tipsy, although the bar is open all the time and hundreds sip wine while they read, talk or play games. Wine is served with all means except breakfast, and champagne goes with the dinner.

I have seen absolutely no necking parties; a strange situation on ships. The girls go about the ship without their elders, in twos and threes, but their behavior is quiet and dignified. The men are respectfully polite to the women. No man makes a move to sit until all the ladies are seated. At any kind of assembly the women get the seats. As there are seldom enough chairs to go around, the men, except the aged, stand. Little boys give their chairs to the women with becoming gravity.

The Spaniards are constitutionally conservative. They do not change their ways merely because other peoples have other ways. They cling to the old customs and methods.

This steamship line is subsidized by the Spanish government. It is anxious to attract American tourists to Spain. The old country needs the money of American tourists, on which France is prospering.

But notices are posted aboard ship in Spanish only. The wireless news that is distributed to passengers is in the same language. The steward who looks after my room and my wants speaks no English. Frenchmen go after the American trade differently.

If you sail from New York aboard one of these Spanish ships you slip down the bay in mid-afternoon, and your friends have not been permitted to give any farewell parties aboard. With much difficulty I obtained a pass permitting my wife and children to come aboard to say good-bye.

EVOLUTION OF THE R. R. CROSSING!

How To Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

How tired we all get today, especially those of us who do not know how to rest! And the fatigue that comes of our swift, modern living is not the healthy, old-fashioned kind, born of a hard day's work at physical labor and a healthy sweat—the kind of fatigue that was usually followed by a long night of sound, dreamless sleep.

It is a different sort entirely, an unhealthy condition of our irritated nerves and harassed minds and spirits. We live at such a high rate of speed in this present era! With so much noise and excitement all around us!

Busy, nervous days, with the fatigue that follows them, are dangerous to beauty, as anything is which interferes with health of body and peace of mind. You can be active, certainly, and still be beautiful. You should be active and busy. Beauty and contentment thrive on wholesome activity. But keep your hours occupied with interests that are sane; work that you like, if possible—try to like your work, whatever it is, or change to a work you do like—and playtime amusements that you enjoy thoroughly.

Happiness is a great force for beauty. Contented, laughing women are so much less likely to have hollow cheeks and shriveled, yellow skins. Of course they must take care to nourish the skin around their eyes to ward off laughter lines. But fundamentally their good looks chances are much better than those of their nervous, unhappy sisters.

One reason for this is that happiness is akin to relaxation. It is a recuperative force that works to replenish the ravages of fatigue. Learn to relax—to rest—and to be happy. And you will have learned one lesson of beauty.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Uneasy lies the head that wears the dry czar's crown.

What does it matter to Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Seymour Lowman, who has been wearing it for nearly a couple of years now (and that's a long time for a dry czar), whether he is on the point of being deprived of his crown or having his realm yanked out from under him?

One way will make him just as much an ex-czar as the other.

It is officially denied that Czar Lowman has been given a limited number of days or weeks to abdicate in.

Generally official denials are at a heavy discount but this one has an air of verisimilitude—because President Hoover is known to believe that little can be accomplished by a mere changing of dry czars—that the present system of so-called prohibition enforcement is wrong fundamentally—that the country can be made dryer without any specifically designated dry czarism.

One of the issues upon which Mr. Hoover may almost be said to have campaigned for president was his plan to re-organize, re-classify and consolidate all the activities of the executive branch of the government.

This plan included the concentration of its prohibition activities in the attorney general's department.

It is a big undertaking and the president probably did not necessarily intend to begin with prohibition enforcement—which is included in it. Indications are that he has since decided it will be best to start with that, start and soon get it out of the way as speedily as possible—inasmuch as it is becoming evident he will not get a minute's peace in the meantime otherwise.

Perhaps ex-Czar Lowman will then be permitted to remain as assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of customs and the coast guard, but he will have nothing further to do with prohibition.

However, President Hoover's first step must be to ask congress to authorize the proposed rearrangement. Congress may balk.

Dry, as well as wet, are divided on the subject. If anything, the wets are more favorable than the dries to the presidential program.

What will its effect be? The dries have their own set of personnel already pretty well installed in the treasury department—the justice department being equally manageable? Will it improve the treasury department's efficiency? or will it retard the dry law as just one law among many to be enforced, and give it no special consideration? Will it shun the spectacular? If so, will that mean that prohibition is accepted at last—or that it is rapidly in process of being forgotten? On the other hand, will the justice department simply intensify the treasury's ballyhoo?—and who will that benefit?

It is not easy to see how enforcement activities can very well be conducted exclusively by the attorney general anyway.

He can prosecute law violators—but can he catch them?—to prosecute.

The treasury's staff of inland sleuths can be turned over to his jurisdiction, yes. But not the coast guard. Not the customs border patrol. These forces must stay under treasury supervision.

How about the labor department's anti-alien-smuggling staff?

There has been considerable recent talk of enlisting the marines' help in resisting the wet invasion. The secretary of the navy can hardly yield command of the marine corps to the attorney general.

The commerce department is suggested as the proper authority to superintend releases of industrial alcohol.

It is easy to propose consolidation; maybe not so easy to consolidate.

A glance at prohibition's past may be enlightening. In pre-Prohibition days, as everybody knows, the treasury department was interested in intoxicants solely for purposes of taxation. From having fought moonshining on a small scale—and a very little smuggling—it inherited the job of dry law enforcement.

David F. Houston was President Wilson's secretary of the treasury then, but prohibition was no such nightmare to him as it became under Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, his successor.

At the outset the "prohibition unit," as it was called, though a treasury subdivision, was a pretty independent institution.

Even the assistant secretary directly in charge of internal revenue was not held very strictly accountable for dry enforcement at that time. Internal Revenue Commissioners Daniel C. Roper, William C. Williams, his successor, and in turn David H. Blair, were closer to the firing line—rather unpleasantly so.

Still, the backstop for most trouble in those days was the prohibition commissioner, in direct charge of the "dry unit"—John F. Kramer of Ohio, to begin with.

Kramer, appointed late in 1919, lasted the better part of 20 months. A Wilson appointee, there was nothing brilliant enough in his record to compel his retention under the Harding administration, and Roy A. Haynes, also of Ohio, followed him in June, 1921.

Popular with the Anti-Saloon League, Haynes hung on his post even after unsatisfactory enforcement conditions had resulted in the re-organization marked by the appointment of Gen. Lincoln C. Andrews, a retired army officer, to the assistant secretaryship of the treasury especially in charge of all dry activities.

With Andrews' advent in April (April 1, by the way) of 1925, for the first time the coast guard entered into the situation.

Haynes, relegated to the rear, though still nominally prohibition commissioner, finally resigned and was succeeded by James E. Jones, who had served under him as assistant.

Upon Jones' ultimate resignation also, Dr. James M. Doran was promoted from his place as head of the bureau's chemical division to the commissioner's post—not as an administrator, for Andrews had assumed all such duties, but as a technical man and practical prohibitionist.

Doran took office as commissioner in May 1927, two months before Andrews' retirement in favor of Seymour Lowman of New York state.

Shortly before quitting General Andrews expressed his opinion before a congressional committee that he had stopped less than 5 per cent of the liquor smuggling into the country, that nearly 1,750,000 stills were in operation in the United States and that 2,000,000 persons were engaged in various forms of bootlegging.

Lowman's initial difficulty was his garrulity.

At one time an order was issued forbidding him to talk for publication, but it failed to keep him quiet for long.

He made embarrassing charges of graft in the dry service.

A statement from him that the treasury is required by law to grant the freedom of American ports to certain tourists arriving from abroad—when no such law exists—greatly fretted his superiors.

Matters were made worse by his perhaps undiplomatic defense of recent prohibition killings by coast and border guardsmen.

The last straw seems to have been the plans for a dry educational campaign in the public schools, found simmering in the prohibition bureau—with whomsoever they may have originated.

This Mexican meat pie would make a good casserole dish to serve hot on an auto picnic. The salad, could be made and packed into a glass jar to be served at the same picnic. I would, however, in such case, serve cake in place of the pudding and fruit.

Green Salad, Serving Four—Two-thirds cup cooked peas, one-half cup diced cucumbers, one-fourth cup chopped sweet pickles, one tablespoon chopped pimientos, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-third cup salad dressing. Mix and chill the ingredients and serve on lettuce.

Answers to Mothers.
God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverb.
"My baby is three months old. I had a hard delivery and my doctor a very good one, was forced to use the forceps. I have taken my baby to several baby doctors and they told me that he has large pupils and one of them told me that he would be able to see for only a short time. He doesn't know whether it will be a few years or months."

"Did you ever hear of such a case? One doctor told me it was due to the forceps, but my own doctor said it was not and that in time the eye condition would remedy itself. Can you give me any advice? If so, I will be glad to pay you for it as any other doctor."

"MRS. G."

Birth injuries to the eyes, even during a forceps delivery, are rare, on account of the bony socket in which they are placed, Mrs. G., and if they do occur, they are more apt to be external injuries to the eyelids and cornea (the outer covering of the eyeball), causing inflammation which usually soon subsides, and swelling.

The pupils of a baby's eyes are normally larger than a child's or adult's, and it is probable that your baby's eyes are normal.

But I suggest you take your baby to an eye specialist. If there is anything the matter with the termination of the optic nerve in the eye, it can be discovered by an examination with an ophthalmoscope. I predict you will find you have nothing to worry about.

I am not in private practice in any way, Mrs. G., so I do not accept fees. Your newspaper, generously pays its share for any information I can give you in the column. Thank you just the same for your kindly intention.

M. A.—Of all despicable quackery, the worst is that which deludes the childless woman into believing that taking its nostrums will regulate her so she can have children. Put no faith in these, M. A. You and your husband should go to a physician for an examination to see if the cause of your sterility cannot be ascertained and remedied.

Sterility sometimes is caused by a prolonged deficient diet, especially one lacking in vitamins. There is even a specific vitamin known as vitamin E which is shown to be necessary in animals for reproduction. This vitamin E is highest in wheat germ and wheat germ oil (one good reason for whole wheat bread), lettuce and lean meats, but it is present in small amounts in the other foods which are high in other vitamins.

Overweight is not infrequently the cause of sterility. And there are other causes which your physician will tell you of.

If you are interested, we have an article on Balanced Diet which you may have.

MRS. J.—Sucking the tongue and lip, and twisting the hair are nervous habits that children who are not even up to par may indulge in. I don't know any remedy for this tongue and lip sucking business. Eventually the child will stop it. Twisting and pulling the hair, of course, can be overcome just as the thumb-sucking habit: by putting cardboard splints around the child's elbows so he cannot get his fingers to his head.

We have a list of books on the general care and feeding of children which you may have by following column rules.

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"From an impatient spirit, Oh, Lord, deliver us!"

This prayer is especially applicable to warm weather, I think. I know it is for me, and I am judging others by myself. Hasty words come quickly when one is "hot and bothered."

"Do you remember in Dickens' 'Little Dorrit' the girl with the 'terrible temper' was advised by her employer to count five and twenty before she spoke, so that she should give herself time to speak with discretion. Does anyone read Dickens now, I wonder? Does one have time and patience to do so in this hectic age?"

Here's a sample of impatience. A youth writes and wants his answer to be in the paper surely four days later. It is past the date and I just had a chance to open his letter, so he is going to be disappointed.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am a boy 20 years old, and whenever it rains I get the blues, and when I see the moon I get the blues and I also get them when I go to bed and hear music. So could you help me, please?"

"THE BLUES." All of us have more or less of that feeling at such times, my lad. But I don't mind, I venture to say. One feels blue, so dreamily, poetically, but it's a real pleasure, don't you think? Makes you feel you're not like the common herd. If the feeling is too acute, get a jolly book and read it when the moon shines and when it rains and just before going to bed.

A LONESOME GIRL: Take the advice of two girls who wrote some time ago and whose letter was published in this column. You are just wasting your time trying to win a boy whose love has cooled, and will only succeed in making yourself look cheap in his eyes. Be brave, and make up your mind that your sorrow shan't make other people unhappy, and in time you will feel better. We're all made like that, dear.

"LONESOME" AND "UNDECEIDED." You both have plenty of time for boys later on. Why not do as your parents wish and have a good time with girl friends and at home until you are older?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have read the Living and Loving column and thought I would tell Nobody's Child to be happy for she has a mother and a mother surely is the grandest thing on earth. I have no mother. My mother died when I was only 18 months. I old. Father married again and my step-mother was a cat. She would beat my brother and me and tell us if we told father she would kill us.

"When I was 13 my brother, only 18 months older, and I thought we would leave home, but we talked to one of our friends and she said we had better stay at home, for who would care for us out in the world. Now, Virginia, I am 18 and glad I stayed, for my father taught brother and I right and taught us to be somebody. Our step-mother has been dead some time. Do you think a woman like that will go to heaven?"

"A MOTHERLESS CHILD." No woman who abuses children will ever get to heaven, I am sure, dear. Step-mothers have a hard time, too, trying to play mother to children. They are often misunderstood. But nothing excuses cruelty to helpless children. I am glad you stayed at home, too, and that you have found happiness.

BESSIE: I am sorry you love this boy so much and he cannot seem to love you in the same way. Don't quarrel when you do see him. All I can advise is to be brave about it. It's something that happens to all of us sometime.

WONDERING MOON: If the young man really cared for you he would find a way to see you. The only way to make his mother like you is to be worth liking.

DOLLY: If you are so stubborn you will not speak to the boy when your mother advises you to, will you do it if I tell you to? One must have faith in one's friends, you know, and not believe stories about them without investigating.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Both institutions have lined up most of their "key" games for 1929 and 1930, but wouldn't it be a fine thing if the Army and Navy would come down off their high horse and arrange a duel debate on the gridiron in 1931.

Maybe the boys themselves can arrange the game if the elderly staff officers will only calm down and get out of the way.

It's about time the Navy yielded a point since the Army has proved its case as far as scheduling matters is concerned. They can play anybody and draw up their own rules of war.

It was Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, who showed the 1928 Army football schedule to a fellow craftsman and said: "Read this and I'll catch you when you faint."

The Army last season took on Southern Methodist, Harvard, Yale, Notre Dame, Nebraska and Stanford, which would be a nice, comfortable program if you spread it over six years or more. But the Army tried and in a majority of cases succeeded in crashing through the lot in nine weeks.

In Southern Methodist, Yale, Notre Dame, Nebraska and Stanford, the Army tackled five of the strongest teams in the different sections of the country. To a man up a tree it would size up as the toughest football schedule that any modern team ever attempted, and that includes Notre Dame.

If the truth were told, it was the Navy that brought it about. It will be remembered that the Annapolis and West Point overlords had a brisk war over eligibility rules early in the winter of 1927, with the Navy repudiating its agreement to play the Army for three more years. Relations were broken off when the Army refused to limit the playing of its football men to three years.

It was then that the West Point schedule committee decided to discover whether the Army was an outcast of the gridiron and announced it was open for bids. The first mail brought a deluge of begging letters from leading colleges all over the country. All they wanted was a game with the Army regardless of whether the Cadet Corps huddled the three-year rule.

The answer to the question of whether the Army was wanted in intercollegiate gridiron competition was found in the team's 1923 schedule with the Cadets playing leading teams from all points in the country.

It was hinted by Navy adherents that the Big Ten teams of the Midwest, with their strict rules, would soon to associate with the Army's veterans of four or five years' service on the gridiron. The retort to this was that this fall one of the feature games will be a clash between the Army and Illinois at West Point.

EAGLES INVITED TO PICNIC AT LONDON

WORKS HARD IN THE FIELD

Relies Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rankin, Illinois.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic before my first child was born six years ago. Then when my second child came and I felt weak and run-down, I took it again. I am still taking it and I am feeling better. My mother used it for herself when I was small and always got good results. She still takes it. I do all kinds of heavy work, including my housework and I also help in the field. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and I am willing to answer any letters."—MRS. ## LANGS FIGHT UP HILL BATTLE TO VICTORY OVER CENTRAL TEAM

Fighting an uphill battle all the way, the Lang Chevrolet Co. softball team uncorked a two-run rally in the last half of the ninth inning to register its fourth straight National League victory at the expense of Xenia Central High's revamped nine Tuesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Ralph Scurry, Central pitcher, held the Lang sluggers fairly well in check all the way and the high school's errors of commission and omission cost them the game.

Scoring three runs in the first inning and another in the third,

Central High assumed a four-run lead. Langs set out to overtake their opponents and after being held scoreless for the first three rounds, recorded one run in the fourth, two in the fifth. Each team scored once in the sixth and Langs tied the count at 5 to 5 by scoring once in the seventh.

The eighth inning passed scoreless for both teams. In the ninth a home run by Rice broke the tie and gave Central a one-run lead. In the Lang half of the stanza, with one out, Leashey beat out a hit to third, Clemans and L. Fuller were safe on fielder's choices and successive hits by Staley and Hoag brought over the tying and winning markers.

Langs outthit the high school, twelve to ten. Neville pitched for the winners.

Staley and Bell, each with three hits, led the winners at bat. Gibney punched out three safeties for the losers. Smittle, Lang catcher, hit for all the bases with one runner on in the fifth.

Leadership of the American League is at stake in the game between the Hooven and Allison Co. and Post Office teams Wednesday night. The two teams are tied for first place. Score:

ANNUAL CLUB CAMP OPENED THIS WEEK WITH 124 PRESENT

One hundred and twenty-four campers have enrolled in the annual South West District 4-H Camp at Antioch Glen, Yellow Springs, which will be in session this week. These campers come from twenty-one counties and include sixty-seven girls, thirty-eight boys, eleven chaperons and eight instructors.

Definite instruction groups in handwork, camp craft, nature study, recreation, swimming, song leading, Indian lore, vespers and camp fire will be held.

Those attending from Greene County are: Velma Harner, Opal Turner, Mary Linton, Louise Sheridan, Helen Fletcher, Dorothy Anderson, Lois Kennon, Leonard Rogers, James Sheridan, Roger Sheeley, Thelma Barth and Donna Sheeley are instructors, the former teaching handwork and the latter song leading.

These boys and girls are older club members who have been selected by the various clubs to represent them and to receive definite instruction as leaders in county camp which will be held the week of August 19-24.

Mrs. Mildred Simms, E. Church St., in company with Miss Louise Liner, are visiting with relatives in Detroit, Mich.

The Zion Baptist Missionary meeting has been changed to the home of Mrs. A. C. Hawkins, E. Main St., Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Cora Hawkins and Mrs. Elizabeth Bowen attended the funeral service Monday of Mr. John Lewis of Wilmington, O.

Both institutions have lined up most of their "key" games for 1929 and 1930, but wouldn't it be a fine thing if the Army and Navy would come down off their high horse and arrange a duel debate on the gridiron in 1931.

Maybe the boys themselves can arrange the game if the elderly staff officers will only calm down and get out of the way.

It's about time the Navy yielded a point since the Army has provided it as case as far as schedule-making is concerned. They can play anybody and draw up their own rules of war.

It was Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, who showed the 1928 Army football schedule to a fellow craftsman and said: "Read this and I'll catch you when you faint."

The Army last season took on Southern Methodist, Harvard, Yale, Notre Dame, Nebraska and Stanford, which would be a nice, comfortable program if you spread it over six years or more. But the Army tried and in a majority of cases succeeded in crashing through the lot in nine weeks.

In Southern Methodist, Yale, Notre Dame, Nebraska and Stanford, the Army tackled five of the strongest teams in the different sections of the country. To a man up a tree it would size up as the toughest football schedule that any modern team ever attempted, and that includes Notre Dame.

If the truth were told, it was the Navy that brought it about. It will be remembered that the Annapolis and West Point overlords had a brick war over eligibility rules early in the winter of 1927, with the Navy repudiating its agreement to play the Army for three more years. Relations were broken off when the Army refused to limit the playing of its football men to three years.

It was then that the West Point schedule committee decided to discover whether the Army was an outcast of the gridiron and announced it was open for bids. The first mail brought a deluge of begging letters from leading colleges all over the country. All they wanted was a game with the Army regardless of whether the Cadet Corps huddled the three-year rule.

The answer to the question of whether the Army was wanted in intercollegiate gridiron competition was found in the team's 1928 schedule with the Cadets playing leading teams from all points in the country.

It was hinted by Navy adherents that the Big Ten teams of the Midwest, with their strict rules, would scorn to associate with the Army's veterans of four or five year's service on the gridiron. The retort to this was that this fall one of the feature games will be a clash between the Army and Illinois at West Point.

It is expected that a number of local Eagles and their families will attend.

The program calls for games, free refreshments, contests for prizes and other forms of entertainment for young and old.

WORKS HARD IN THE FIELD

Relies Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rankin, Illinois.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic before and after my first child was born six years ago. Then when my second child was born and I felt weak and run-down, I took it again. I am still taking it and I am feeling better. My mother used it for herself when I was small and always got good results. She still takes it. I do all kinds of heavy work, including my housework and I also help in the field. I recommend the Vegetable Compound and I am willing to answer any letters."—Mrs. BEN OREN-LAND, Route 2, Rankin, Illinois.

LANGS FIGHT UP HILL BATTLE TO VICTORY OVER CENTRAL TEAM

Fighting an uphill battle all the way, the Lang Chevrolet Co. rally team unhooked a two-run rally in the last half of the ninth inning to register its fourth straight National League victory at the expense of Xenia Central High's revamped nine Tuesday night at Cox Memorial Athletic Field.

Ralph Scurry, Central pitcher, held the Lang sluggers fairly well in check all the way and the high school's errors of commission and omission cost them the game.

Scoring three runs in the first inning and another in the third,

Central High assumed a four-run lead. Langs set out to overtake their opponents and after being held scoreless for the first three rounds, recorded one run in the fourth and two in the fifth. Each team scored once in the sixth and Langs tied the count at 5 to 5 by scoring once in the seventh.

The eighth inning passed scoreless for both teams. In the ninth a home run by Bice broke the tie and gave Central a one-run lead.

In the Lang half of the stanza, with one out, Leashey beat out a hit to third, Clemans and L. Puller were safe on fielder's choices and successful hits by Stealy and Hoag brought over the tying and winning markers.

Langs outlived the high school, twelve to ten. Neville pitched for the winners.

Staley and Bell, each with three hits, led the winners at bat. Gibney punched out three safeties for the losers. Smittle, Lang catcher, hit for all the bases with one runner on in the fifth.

Leadership of the American League is at stake in the game between the Hoag and Allison Co. and Post Office teams Wednesday night. The two teams were tied for first place. Score:

DEPEND ON ZEMO
TO STOP ITCH

Use soothing, healing, invisible Zemo for that itching torture, caused by mosquito or insect bites, sunburn, prickly heat, poison ivy or summer rash. This clean, reliable family antiseptic promptly stops itching and draws the heat and sting out of the skin. ZEMO has been used for twenty years with remarkable success for all forms of annoying, itching skin irritations. Have relief with one application. 35¢, 60¢ and $1.00. All dealers.

White? Not these clothes!

There was plenty of soap. The clothes were scrubbed thoroughly, and rinsed. But the water was hard. The soap mixed with the hard water, and formed a dirty ring around the basin—scum! The scum got into the fabric of the clothes. That's why the clothes weren't clean.

But they can be clean. How? By washing them in soft water. And how can hard water be made soft? By adding Melo. The water is now a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap; and the soap much more effective. Get a can today at your grocer's.

ANNUAL CLUB CAMP OPENED THIS WEEK WITH 124 PRESENT

One hundred and twenty-four campers have enrolled in the annual South West District 4-H Camp at Antioch Glen, Yellow Springs, which will be in session this week. These campers come from twenty-one counties and include sixty-seven girls, thirty-eight boys, eleven chaperons and eight instructors.

Definite instruction groups in handicraft, camp craft, nature study, recreation, swimming, song leading, Indian lore, vespers and camp fire will be held.

Those attending from Greene County are: Velma Harner, Opal Turner, Mary Linton, Louise Sheridan, Helen Fletcher, Dorothy Anderson, Lois Kenyon, Leonard Rogers, Thelma Barth and Donna Sheeley. Miss Barth and Miss Sheeley are instructors, the former teaching handicraft and the latter song leading.

These boys and girls are older club members who have been selected by the various clubs to represent them and to receive definite instruction as leaders in county camp which will be held the week of August 19-24.

Where do the motion picture lions come from? Up around El Monte, Calif., where Mr. and Mrs. Gay run their celebrated lion farm, now grown to be pretty much of a sightseeing resort.

They started out there empty umpt years ago with three lions and now have 150, of whom the most famous is Numa, famed screen performer. Numa has earned $70,000 in the last seven years, working with Charles Chaplin, today and anyone who thinks she doesn't do a good job of it, may step up and get his money back. Doris is a hired hand of the Famous Players group, of average height, still in her teens and with auburn bobbed hair and hazel eyes. She is at present appearing with Jack Gilbert in "Olympia" and when it is finished she will emote in a swell part in "The Children," an Edith Wharton yarn which Lothar Mendes is to direct. Frederick Marsh is to hero.

DORIS HILL

lin, Douglas MacLean, Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels and lots of others.

Numa is a union lion. When the whistle blows he quits work and nobody denies him the right to leave the set first. But when he is on duty he gives a straightforward performance. A curious thing is that Numa's children are utterly lacking in flicker talent. They are all too nervous to carry on their daddy's career.

Everyone who sees pictures has seen the big lion head that yawns from the corner of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer trademark. This fellow was named Slat. He died last year, but his fame goes on as the principal feature of the trademark, the movies keeping his memory alive.

Prince, another husky beast, is now being trained for endeavors before the camera. His papa is the ferocious Cyclone. His next door neighbor is Butterfly, so-called because of his famous leaps from here to there. Butterfly dislikes everyone on principal. He wants to eat them first and ask questions later.

Gay's firm is an interesting place but it looks a bit bazaar to see a half-feathered pullet yawn in the face of these "kings of the jungle" and get away with it.

SWEDISH FRUIT FREE LIST
STOCKHOLM, July 10.—All kinds of fruit not raised in Sweden have been put on the free list, such as lemons, oranges, peaches, pines, pineapples and bananas. Apples and pears, which ripen in Sweden, may henceforth be imported free of duty during the first six months of the year, when there are no native fruits or berries available. In this way the Swedish Riksdag, just adjourned, solved the problem of how to protect native produce and at the same time avoid increasing the cost of living.

TAMAKI MIURI AND GEISHA GIRLS ARE HEARD ON PROGRAM

Going a step further this year than has been its usual custom, the Redpath management, in addition to the two headline plays usually offered, presented Tamaki Miura, famous for her interpretation of the leading role in "Madame Butterfly," as the chautauqua program feature Tuesday night.

Madame Miura, with her company of geisha girls presented a program that was enthusiastically received. The Japanese prima donna was heard in operatic excerpts, including "Madame Butterfly."

Her appearance with the Chicago Civic Opera Co. and the San Carlo Opera Co. has added fame which already was hers when she came to America from her native Japan.

The Japanese soprano has also made concert tours in many foreign lands.

Assisted by the geisha girls and other associate artists, Madame Miura demonstrated why she is the world's best known "Madame Butterfly."

Musical and dramatic diversions will be offered by Fern Castford and her company as the afternoon feature of chautauqua's fourth day Wednesday. Appearing with her in a program of character sketches, will be three talented instrumentalists. Their numbers will include familiar classics and popular modern diversions in costume.

In the evening this group will again give an entertainment after which Captain "Dinnie" Upton is scheduled to give a lecture. "Dinnie" was a captain in the air service and an athletic coach and is known as "the big brother to a hundred thousand kids."

No More Gas In Stomach and Bowels

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Baalman's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach, gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort.

That drowsy, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your limbs, arms and fingers will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Baalman's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Get the genuine, in the yellow package, at any good drug store. Price 25c.
